ALBA Herd Recognition Award

Criteria	Points Possible
A herd that has had a profound and positive impact on the advancement of the LaMancha breed. These foundation herds would have played a key role in advancement of the LaMancha breed in production, type and show. Evidence of positive impact witnessed through their lines being found in multiple generations of progeny, resulting in SG animals, Top Ten Awards, consistently improving LA scores, All-American Awards, National Show Awards, Elite and permanent GCH designations. A herd that has been able to reproduce positive traits in many other herds as evidenced over multiple generations, thereby improving LaManchas nationwide. The committee is to take into consideration not only accomplishments of the herd being considered for the award, but progeny of this herd's animals, this being the real indicator of the herd's ability to reproduce its positive traits and improvements, ultimately advancing the breed as a whole.	60
Participated in Linear Appraisal and DHI to guide the direction of the breeding program (if available at the time; if not other available documentation can be used, i.e. published articles, etc)	10
Shown a willingness to help others, educate the public in regard to dairy goats and dairy goat products, and maintained a well-cared for and healthy herd. A breeder whole vision, hard work and dedication not only set their herd apart from the rest, but improved the LaMancha breed a whole.	30

1. Herds being nominated for the ALBA Herd Recognition Award will be evaluated according to the above criteria and point system.
2. Each member of the ALBA can nominate one herd for the Herd Recognition Award by email or regular mail sent to the Awards Committee chair or a member of the Awards committee.
3. The Awards Committee will designate points for each nominee for the award.
4. The ALBA Herd Recognition Award will be awarded at the ADGA National Show or the ADGA National Convention.
5. The award will be a plaque and a tribute board will be created by the Awards Committee with input from the winner. This will be displayed at the ADGA Convention and National Show the year following the presentation of the award. An article spotlighting the winning herd will be submitted to United Caprine News and Dairy Goat Journal and included in the club newsletter and on the website.
6. The winning herd will receive lifetime membership in the ALBA.
7. One herd will be chosen each year, which is a lifetime award.
8. Nominees not chosen can be nominated again in later years.

Winter management tips for goats

By Michael Metzger ~ Michigan State University

As cold weather approaches, it is important to consider the comfort of the goats we care for.

Winter can be a stressful time for livestock. As owners, we need to help reduce that stress by providing proper care, feeding and management practices. Adjusting management practices will help to ensure that goats under your care will thrive through the cold winter months.

Goats do not require elaborate housing during the winter months. The most important issues regarding housing is to block the harsh, cold north wind and to keep the animals dry. Goats that are properly cared for will have a thick coat of hair helping them to survive the winter with minimal housing. A three sided structure with the opening facing the south provides protection from the cold wind and yet allow plenty of ventilation to keep moisture down in the barn or shed. Make sure this is planet of clean, dry bedding available. Goats kidding in the cold weather will require more shelter because young kids will not be able to maintain their body temperature outside. A heat lamp may be required in these situations but should only be used with extreme caution because of the risk of barn fires or animals chewing electric cords.

Feeding and watering goats in the winter requires a little more planning than during the warmer summer months. Goats should have access to fresh water at all times. This may require changing water a couple of times a day to remove the ice or some other type of heated waterer. Use caution with any type of electrical device with goats as they may chew the cord. During the winter, goats need more energy to help maintain body temperature. They will also need roughage which can be supplied in grass, alfalfa, or mixed hay. Alfalfa hay can be a great source of both energy and protein, although care should be taken when feeding bucks and wethers because of urinary calculi. Salt and minerals should also be available.

Lice are more prevalent on goats during the winter months. They can be irritating to the goat and in some cases, heavy infestations can cause anemia, poor coat and/or skin quality. Michigan State University Extension recommends working with your veterinarian to develop a treatment plan for your goat herd to control lice and other parasites.

Keeping a herd of goats, or even a couple of animals as companions, can be a rewarding experience. With a little preplanning we can help our animals not only survive, but thrive in the cold winter months.

Recipe Corner

Caramelized Onion & Goat Cheese Bites

2 tbsp. extra-virgin olive oil

1 tbsp unsalted butter

4 medium yellow onions, thinly sliced

Kosher salt

Freshly ground black pepper

1 tbsp. balsamic vinegar

1 tbsp fresh thyme leaves, plus more for serving

All purpose flour, for surface

2 sheets frozen puff pastry (17.3 oz pkg) thawed in refrigerator

1 large egg, beaten to blend

4 oz. goat cheese, crumbled

2 tsp. honey

1. In a large skilled over medium heat, heat oil & butter. Add onions, 2 tsp salt and 1/4 tsp pepper and cook, stirring occasionally, until onions are very caramelized, about 35 minutes. Stir in vinegar & thyme. Let cool to room temperature.
2. Arrange racks in upper and lower thirds of oven; preheat to 375 degrees. Line 2 baking sheets with parchment.
3. On a lightly floured surface, cut each puff pastry sheet into 9 (3"-by-3") squares. Transfer squares to prepared sheets. Top each with about 1 tbsp. onions, leaving a 1/2" border on all sides. Brush exposed edges with egg. Divide goat cheese among squares.
4. Bake tarts, rotating sheets front to back halfway through, until puffed and golden brown, 25 to 28 minutes. Drizzle a little honey on each tart. Top with more thyme & pepper. Serve immediately or at room temperature

From the President....

Hi everyone,

Happy Valentines Day everyone. Well after a couple of very cold snaps this winter, we are now enjoying very spring-like temperatures.....hopefully it lasts until spring! I'm sure everyone is knee deep ro will be knee deep soon in babies....best of luck to everyone on your kidding season....hoping for only easy deliveries and lovely doe kids!

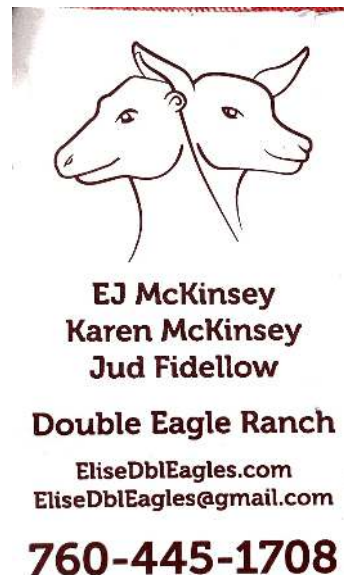

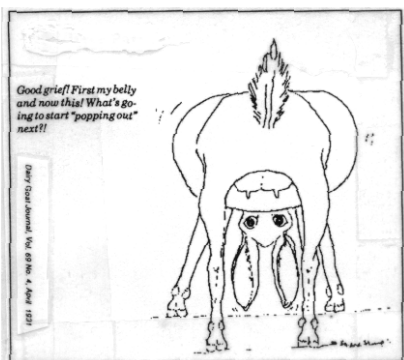

The All American program was a big success again this year and we thank everyone that entered. Awards and certificates were mailed and results have been sent out to all who entered. Congratulations to the winners and to the youth who entered this year! We had some very lovely animals entered and our thanks go out to our All American chair (this is a labor intensive program!) and to our 3 capable judges, Aaron Carter, Emily Thompson and Tom Cox. Please take a moment to read up on the Board Action as this directly involves the All American going forward. See page 29.

Specialty shows have been awarded. We have 4 very well deserving shows hosting Specialty shows in 2023. If you have a show close to you, I hope you will take the time to attend.

The Production and Dam-Sire program entry forms are in this newsletter. These are INFORMATIONAL forms only as both forms will have online entries. Links to both programs will be on the home page of the website...please take the time to nominate your deserving animals. Also included are forms for the Total Performer Award, Herd Recognition Award and Youth Honor Roll. The Bob Webb-Ray Engeman Memorial Scholarship form is also enclosed.

If you are interested in serving on an ALBA committee, please drop us an email at lamanchabreeders@gmail.com and let us know. Also please keep in mind that our annual election is coming up in August and we need some volunteers willing to run for offices and director positions!
