One to three incisors barely erupted in females at birth; incisors at gum line in males at birth.

Alveoli develop and differentiate into flattened (type I cell) and cuboid (type II cell) epithelial cells — here the baby can breathe on its own.

Remember the deadline for all production programs is April 10 and youth scholarship apps are due April 1.

If you have any questions or suggestions please feel free to contact any of your officers or directors. Wishing everyone a successful kidding season with lots of doe kids and easy kiddings!!

ALBA Herd Recognition Award

Criteria	Points Possible
A herd that has had a profound and positive impact on the advancement of the LaMancha breed. These foundation herds would have played a key role in advancement of the LaMancha breed in production, type and show. Evidence of positive impact witnessed through their lines being found in multiple generations of progeny, resulting in SG animals, Top Ten Awards, consistently improving LA scores, All-American Awards, National Show Awards, Elite and permanent GCH designations. A herd that has been able to reproduce positive traits in many other herds as evidenced over multiple generations, thereby improving LaManchas nationwide. The committee is to take into consideration not only accomplishments of the herd being considered for the award, but progeny of this herd's animals, this being the real indicator of the herd's ability to reproduce its positive traits and improvements, ultimately advancing the breed as a whole.	60
Participated in Linear Appraisal and DHI to guide the direction of the breeding program (if available at the time; if not other available documentation can be used, i.e. published articles, etc)	10
Shown a willingness to help others, educate the public in regard to dairy goats and dairy goat products, and maintained a well-cared for and healthy herd. A breeder whole vision, hard work and dedication not only set their herd apart from the rest, but improved the LaMancha breed a whole.	30

1. Herds being nominated for the ALBA Herd Recognition Award will be evaluated according to the above criteria and point system.
2. Each member of the ALBA can nominate one herd for the Herd Recognition Award by email or regular mail sent to the Awards Committee chair or a member of the Awards committee.
3. The Awards Committee will designate points for each nominee for the award.
4. The ALBA Herd Recognition Award will be awarded at the ADGA National Show or the ADGA National Convention.
5. The award will be a plaque and a tribute board will be created by the Awards Committee with input from the winner. This will be displayed at the ADGA Convention and National Show the year following the presentation of the award. An article spotlighting the winning herd will be submitted to United Caprine News and Dairy Goat Journal and included in the club newsletter and on the website.
6. The winning herd will receive lifetime membership in the ALBA.
7. One herd will be chosen each year, which is a lifetime award.
8. Nominees not chosen can be nominated again in later years.
